Dear Barbara,

Writing letters takes time I do not have, but I had to write this second one to Open City after appearance of the second Lifton-Thornley piece. I sent you my first letter last week.

What's new down there? I'd be there now if I had the plane fare and a quiet, private place to stay, where I can interview witnesses without the world looking in and at the strange hours necessary.

D. writes that you hate her and asks me why. Do you? Why?

Please tell Kelley I didn't forget the rabbit pictures; they didntt come out. Film too old. I'll get some yet. Still have rabbits.

Needle Jack Working about what he was going to send me weeks ago, will you, please? He'll recall.

Everyone who writes me is so dispirited over the RFK assassination What can I say, aside from what would be without believe and unwelcome, that I predicted it? First there were two silent brothers, now there is one.

All I know of what is going on down there is what I see in the papers, including about myself. I didn't know the lawyer sought transfer of the Bringuier frivolity to federal court until then. As he files more and more suits that cannot be serious law suits, I get even more interested in him and fascinated by how his lawyer, Nestor Marquez-Diaz, can continue to afford taking without fee cases that cannot win. Have you anything on those two? I think Nestor had some kind of connection with Ricardo Davis.

Regards to everyone. Wish I knew when I'd be there.

Sincerely,
